

Barbara Scott, Colorado's Voice for Safety, Launches New Seminar Company that is Making a Big Difference in the Lives of Thousands of Colorado Men, Women, and Children.

Popular Colorado speaker, educator, and trainer, Barbara Scott, accepts challenge to lead grassroots – style safety presentations through free public awareness campaigns.

Centennial, CO (PRWEB) 17 June 2006 – Colorado entrepreneurs last fall challenged Barbara Scott to create a platform, which would offer superior public awareness campaigns on behavioral safety, personal security, as well as other topics. Today as Founder and CEO of Five Star Seminars and Colorado Safety Educators, Barbara Scott continues to gain attention because of her positive, solution-oriented, safety presentations.

Five Star Seminars, a Colorado based speakers bureau, and Colorado Safety Educators are most recognized for co-sponsoring Barbara Scott's safety campaign, "If you were attacked, would you know what to do?"

According to Colorado's convicted sex offender website, "1 in 4 women and 1 in 17 men in Colorado had experienced a completed or attempted sexual assault in their lifetime." Founder, Barbara Scott, and the management teams at both Five Star Seminars and Colorado Safety Educators feel this statistic is unacceptable. "This is why our safety instructors leave their offices and go out into the community. We instruct men, women, and children, in a variety of ways, to protect themselves from being attacked and raped," explains Barbara Scott.

Five Star Seminars and Colorado Safety Educators are a perfect fit for Barbara Scott's safety niche development strategy. With Barbara's vision and leadership, and the entrepreneurial spirit of the management teams, the public awareness campaigns are spreading quickly across Colorado audiences and new campaigns are creating multiple platforms.
